VANISHING HALOS

The public is frankly pleased with the sight of so many once weighty personages wandering about sheepishly without their accustomed halo. It is particularly delighted when their wanderings are interrupted by the firm hand of justice guiding them into the courts. Ecstasy bubbles over at the thought that some of them may be seen soon peering from behind solid prison bars.

Their names and former reputations do not matter much now. Whether they be prominent metropolitan bankers whose words used to be gathered up and preserved as the fruit of wisdom or the less impressive small fry wound up in the consequences of avarice and stupidity, the important thing is that they have been debunked. Their halos have vanished under pressure. A good many of them deserve the same fate. They have had their day and made a mess of it.

With the banking collapse there came a bitter but somewhat pleasant conviction that a good many of the mighty men of money were going to be smeared among the ruins. Unfortunately, realization hasn't been quite so thrilling as anticipation, chiefly because too many of the prospective victims seem to have stalled off their eventual fate. Unless the Roosevelt administration goes through with a thorough cleanup a great many unworthy worthies are going to be saved for further mischief.

The more vicious of the lot, however, are coming to sight. The breadth and scope of their now exposed audacity with the people's money were too great to be concealed. Hardened as the public is to corruption, it nevertheless is realizing for the first time a truth of which it had been skeptical. The crookedness of politicians is secondary in comparison with that of a great many of the deflated money barons, real and imaginary, who have dared to criticize politicians. Grafting office-holders have been outgrafted by professionals.

Needless to say, it will be a deep disappointment if there is not a wholesale deportation of these characters from business circles. The public has been taught to believe they are omniscient. It knows now that they aren't. Naturally, there will be a good deal of wrath if they escape jail.

LOOK IT OVER

Gov. White is busily keeping step with the beer parade. He has asked the general assembly for emergency enactment of the Ackerman bill, proposed as the means for giving Ohio an immediate setup for manufacture, distribution and sale of 32 per cent beer.

The governor states three reasons for immediate enactment of this bill. Ohio needs the revenue of $1 a barrel and the license fees from beer manufacturers and distributors as quickly as it can be made available. Being surrounded, with the exception of Michigan, by states ready to legalize beer, it needs the advantage that quick legislation would provide. Last, it needs whatever stimulation to business and employment there is to be had from selling beer and beer equipment here.

These are soundly realistic reasons. The governor knows where the state stands. The issue now, therefore, is the Ackerman bill which the assembly has been urged to rush through.

Compounded of recommendations made by an investigating committee on somewhat short notice, the bill probably is as good as such legislation can be made, which is to say that it is far from perfect.

Its glaring weakness is establishment of a liquor control commission of seven members appointed for seven-year terms. These members, who would have little to do but appoint a secretary to do all the work, would receive $1200 a year and traveling expenses. Their jobs would be political sinecures.

A better plan would be one suggested for use in New York state. The governor should appoint a non-partisan board of citizens willing to give their best thought and effort to make the return of legal beer something more than a holiday for the politicians and grafter. This board, in turn, should be empowered to appoint a commissioner to enforce whatever provisions may be found necessary. The possibility of corruption thus would be minimized and the probability of intelligent handling of what inevitably will be a difficult problem greatly increased. Beer must be kept out of politics if repetition of the previous experience with legal sale of alcoholic beverages is to be avoided.

One other detail of the Ackerman bill will stand examination. One wonders why non-intoxicating beer—and its non-intoxicating status must be guarded jealously if it is to be made available—must be barred from sale on Sundays, election days and any other day the beer commissioners may designate. Ohio will not help the beer cause any by retaining this inconsistent restriction.

What is going to be done about legal beer in Ohio had best be done quickly, but the Ackerman bill should be examined critically. It has some of the aspects of a wooden horse.

What Others Say

LET'S HAVE TWO CENTS POSTAGE

One way to give impetus to business, to give it a lift instead of loading it down with unnecessary burdens, is to restore the two-cent stamp to its old usefulness.

Postmaster General Farley's effort to bring that about will create cheer and comfort among millions of patrons of the mails.

The idea of establishing the three-cent letter rate was, of course, to create new revenue in order that that national budget would balance. The results have been tremendously disappointing. The expected revenue boost was entirely insignificant in reality.

Patrons who had no objection to a two-cent letter rate suddenly found the increase of one cent too much. Correspondence dropped.

A great many business houses that had been mailing monthly statements to the customers refused to pay three cents on each statement and established the system of delivering the statements to the customers' houses by the store delivery system. One big store found after several months' experience that the cost was slightly less than two cents for each statement delivered in this manner.

As part of the Roosevelt program to encourage business the restoration of a two-cent letter rate would seem to be a proposal everybody could subscribe to. Postmaster Farley is considering economics in his department which will wipe out the postal deficit. If he accomplishes that he will be a wizard. If he restores the two-cent letter rate, he will be a hero.—Toledo Times.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, March 24

The planetary influences for this day seem to give much leeway to individual discretion and sagacity, since much depends upon the wise management of certain doubtful situations, there being a sign of duplicity, fraud or misrepresentation, with aspects of the secret and sinister. However, there is splendid augury of aid, advancement and preferment from those in places of power and prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of excellent opportunity for reaching high goals and attaining solid ground in achieving their hopes and wishes. A child born on this day may be clever, shrewd and practical, with much ability to achieve its high ambitions, even by methods of expediency. It should be popular and attain good position in life.

Cox, of Ohio, to accept the position. Morris, a native of New Orleans, La., and a Harvard graduate, has long been associated with social work in New York.

"House Cleaning" Detroit Banks

Following the failure of Detroit, Mich., to straighten out its banking tangle during the recent "holiday," B. C. Schram (left) and Paul Keyes, first bank conservators appointed by the Federal Government, are pictured as they took charge of the affairs of Detroit's two biggest banks, the First National and the Guardian National group. The United States is now going ahead with plans for the opening of a new bank and advancing the capital for it as part of President Roosevelt's program for sound banking. All executives of the banks taken over are out, only employees from assistant cashiers down being retained.

Know Measles Symptoms

Not long ago I told you about German measles and the more common form of measles. Since then, many inquiries have come to me from mothers. It seems desirable to do something to help regarding this too frequent affliction of childhood.

In some of these letters, the question was asked: "How long is it necessary for the afflicted child to remain at home?"

Other mothers desired more information regarding the diagnosis, the recognition of measles.

It is probably that measles is the most contagious of all the diseases of childhood. It is quickly transmitted from one person to another. It is a difficult disease to control because the sufferer may transmit the disease to others even before the signs of measles appear.

For example, a child may cough and sneeze for two or three days and attend school during this time. Because he has no fever, the mother still believes her child is suffering from nothing worse than a cold.

A Dangerous Disease
But pretty soon the child complains of sore and painful eyes and running nose. A rash appears around the ears and face. Measles is then suspected. Unfortunately, the harm of exposure to other children has been done and the disease has been spread.

Never consider measles too lightly. The sufferer should rest in bed, be given a light diet, and isolated from other children. The eyes should be protected from sunlight and glaring lights. Boric acid solution should be used to cleanse the eyes and nose. The disease is contagious until after the rash has disappeared.

Measles differs from German measles in that it is more severe. German measles is a mild ailment and the sufferer is only slightly ill. The complication of pneumonia rarely results from German measles. Unfortunately, it is a common danger in measles, particularly when it attacks young and undernourished children. In German measles, the rash appears suddenly. Often the child goes to bed apparently well and awakens in the morning with his face covered with a red rash. In ordinary measles, the rash is a late symptom.

German measles, measles, chicken pox, scarlet fever and diphtheria still continue to be serious hazards to the health of our children. We can only protect them by early recognition and taking the necessary precautions without delay.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 23.—Ten years ago, New York had a dozen weekly and monthly shakedown journals devoted to chit-chat. Of the 400. Most conspicuous, until its publisher, Col. Mann, fell foul of legal reprisals, was the now-forgotten Town Topics. It kept philanderers on constant edge.

Even though brightly informative of social goings-on, the majority existed on polite blackmail. As a prelude to the holdup, a proof of a proposed article was submitted to the victim, lifting the curtain on the inevitable family skeleton. A stock subscription or page ad "kill" the piece.

So far as I know, there are none of the high-jackers left. Indeed, even the more reputable have dwindled, until, before the market smash, only three were printed. The information such feuilletons spread is now done more expertly and accurately by society writers on daily newspapers.

Cholly Knickerbocker is Maury Paul, a Social Registerite, and Billy Benedict is Baron Wrangel. Madame Fluttermeyer is of the upper social realm and many other pseudonyms are bona fide members of the Gold Coast's elect. All know whereof they speak and are unbreakable.

Frank Tinney idles most of his time, while not rocking at a window, warming a bench in the park near his Philadelphia home. Improved in health, but not entirely recovered, he reads Variety, weekly, for news of those of the theater he knew in other days. Much of the cross-fire comedy of today originated with Tinney. His habit of talking to the orchestra leader developed the stooge.

I used to like Tinney's story of the colored cook impounded for beating up another woman. When Tinney called at the jail he asked her what she had done. "I didn't do miffin," Mr. Tinney," she explained. "But I jes' natcherly can't control myself when a lady comes at me with a brick."

Broadway still is discussing Douglas Fairbanks Jr.'s surprising versatility, as revealed at a benefit while on his recent visit. Those who thought he merely shone in his sire's reflected effulgence found, instead, an actor whose mimicry of his Dad, Chevalier, Chaplin and Wallace Beery the high spot of an all-star program.

Several screen celebrities, however, should watch their step in public. I think "in especial" of a recent tea where a brunet charmer appeared a bit tipsy. She swept into the room with a "look-at-me" in triumphant promenade, she lurched through another doorway into about the most inoffensive, scholarly and gentlemanly fellow I know. Although knocked to one side, he immediately humbled himself with: "I am tremendously sorry. It was entirely my awkwardness." To which she muttered: "Course it was your fault. Whose else? Anyway, I don't like your face!" He flushed scarlet, bowed and walked away—leaving the group hip-deep in amazement at this flagrant exhibition of uncalled-for insolence.

Yet I recall a most gracious consideration for strangers expressed by a movie star at a mixed affair at Tom Mix's hilltop home one night. In the midst of festivities, a bewildered couple appeared confused as to what to do. A gentleman quickly detached himself and approached, with: "I am Charlie Chaplin. Mr. Mix is in another part of the house. Please meet my friends and make yourself at home."

The most insufferable behavior in public I ever witnessed, was by one of those reduced duchesses in a theater one evening. She insisted on airing her Shropshire pedigree during a tense death scene until the audience turned on her with hisses.

Thingumbobs: William Clackson, father of American illustrators, has the artistic hands of a girl. Karl K. Kitchen is in South America for a series of newspaper and magazine articles. Hap Ward is a night-visitor to George M. Cohan's dressing room to tell the latest yarn. Don Clarke plots his novels as he writes them. C. B. Dillingham has worn pink shirts and black ties for 30 years. Charles E. Mitchell, the banker, is often a dawn-walker in Central Park.

During the Floridian holiday of the New York artists and writers, Rube Goldberg, on a round of golf, suddenly screamed, from a morass of palm trees: "Hey, caddy, never mind the ball. Find me!"

FEDERAL ECONOMY

Editor, The News:

With wages lowered to a point now where most wage earners and salaried men are making barely enough to meet current expenses it is difficult to see how the national economy bill can improve business conditions.

Let me quote from The Washington Herald:

"Opposition to the economy bill which would give the President authority to reduce government employees' salaries was expressed by Thomas P. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, in a letter to members of the Senate."

"Flaherty asserted it would be a mistake and injustice to create the impression in the minds of taxpayers throughout the country that government employees' salaries are the cause of high assessments. His letter to the senators, in part, stated:

"Lower wages mean diminished mass purchasing power which affects business and dries up sources of taxation revenue."

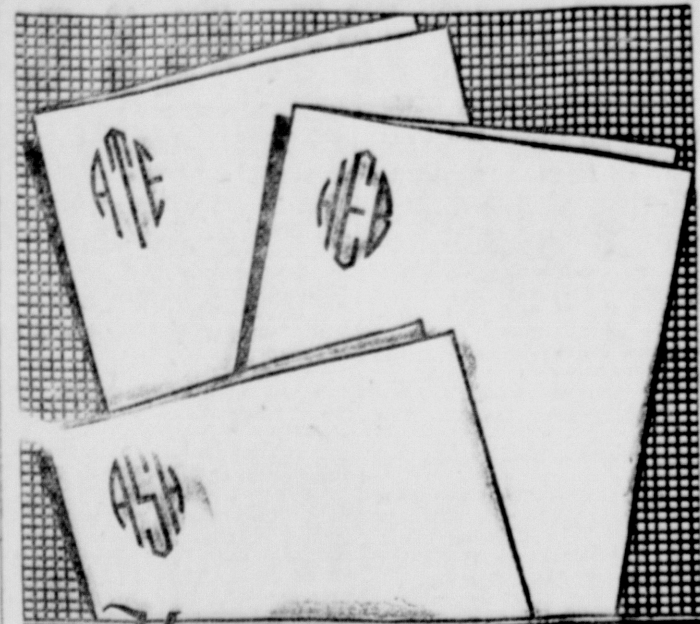

"The average wage in the government service is only $1,440 per year. Of the total tax dollar, covering all taxes for all purposes, the Federal wage bill amounts to less than four per cent.

"Thus, all of the civil agencies of the government could be completely abolished without substantially reducing taxes. It is futile and wrong to further lower wage standards in an hysterical effort to immediately balance the budget."

Social Affairs

TRIMBLE CLASS PARTY

The Trimble class of the Presbyterian church had a beautifully appointed dinner party Wednesday evening at the church, with 90 members and guests present.

Enhanced with a color scheme of yellow and green, carried out in flowers and Easter novelties, the tables presented a lovely appearance.

The room where the supper was served was made attractive with bouquets of forsythia and pussy willows and palms.

The group attended the prayer service in a body. Later in the evening a program, in charge of Mrs. V. H. McBane and her committee, was presented.

A play, "Radio to the Rescue," given by members of the Salem-Quakers club, was a feature. It was under the direction of Charles Stewart and he was also in the cast. Other players were: Ruth Obenour, Dorothy Wright, Paul Smith, Margaret Megall, Clair King and Doris King.

Other numbers on the program were: Vocal solos, Miss Ora Vincent, accompanied by Miss Anna Cook; vocal solos, Rev. R. D. Walter, with Miss Cook at the piano; piano solos, Sylvia Marburger.

Mrs. W. E. Bunn is teacher of this class.

METHODIST CIRCLES

With 15 members in attendance, Circle 1 of the Methodist Episcopal church held a business and social meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Rheutan, Jennings ave. Mrs. John Kaminsky had the devotions.

Plans were made for a meeting on April 26 when the members will have a covered dinner at noon at the church. Refreshments were served.

Circle 2
Mrs. W. W. Tolbert was hostess to members of Circle 2 of the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon at her home East Third st.

The devotions were given by Mrs. R. L. Smith. Mrs. E. E. Apple contributed an Irish reading.

Mrs. Harry Bard, acting president read a letter from the president, Mrs. Gilbert, of Damascus, who is ill.

At the social period refreshments were served by Mrs. Tolbert and assisting hostesses, Mrs. John Kerr and Mrs. Harry Bard.

The April meeting will be with Mrs. Irving Merrill, East Third st.

Circle 3
Members of Circle 3 met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. J. P. Sharp, East Pershing st.

Devotions were in charge of Mrs. E. M. Peters.

The program, which was in charge of Mrs. R. B. Clark, consisted of songs by Mrs. Mary Alberte; selections by the Trumpet trio, composed of Kathryn Taylor, Rachel Cope and Doris King; piano solo, Betty Sharp.

Mrs. Sharp was assisted by Mrs. Frederick Koerich and Mrs. John Grove.

LUTHERAN SOCIETY

When members of the English Ladies Aid society of the Emanuel Lutheran church met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Michael Kinn, Euclid st., they planned to decorate the church for the Palm Sunday services.

After the business session the hours were enjoyed socially and the hostess served lunch.

On April 26 the members will meet at the church.

E. STAR ACTIVITIES

Esther J. Rhodes, Massillon, deputy grand matron, will conduct the inspection of the Hanoverton Eastern Star chapter on March 29. Dinner will be served at 6:30.

This officer will also conduct the inspection for the Lisbon chapter on April 21.

CLUB DINNER

Club associates of Mrs. Murray King had a covered dinner Thursday at her home, near Valley. Needlework was the main pastime of the afternoon.

bills have reposed in the senate banking committee, many changes have been made in the upper branch since the bills passed the house.

The bills would give the governor the right to appoint a banking advisory commission and give the banking department additional authority to liquidate closed banks.

"Good Beer" Is Studied

"Good beer" was another study for the senate, but so far the attempts of the Ohio senate to follow the action of the national congress to legalize beer of 3.2 per cent weight have produced nothing but headaches for the senate judiciary committee.

Another measure scheduled for action in the house was on to allow delinquent tax payers to pay their outstanding taxes in six installments. The first five payments would be in amounts of at least 10 per cent, while the last installment would be for the balance, plus any accrued interest.

Indirectly, the assembly, which had thought of recessing for a month, probably tomorrow night, would not be able to get its business completed and would be compelled to meet again next week.

The house last night voted its approval to removing censorship from news reels, by a vote of 101 to 11.

Another measure receiving house approval was that to allow library boards to get 70 per cent of the amount of undistributed intangible assets. Under provisions of the intangible law adopted two years ago, library boards were not provided for under the bill, passed last night, the board would get 70 per cent of the undistributed money before any of the other subdivisions of their share. An attempt to allow the remainder to go to poor relief was voted down.

The house also passed a bill to abolish the office of superintendent of investigation in the state utilities commission.

Approval was voted by the house to the reappropriation of some $49,000 to the state welfare department for improvements and betterments at various institutions. The appropriations were made two years ago, but lapsed with the new fiscal year.

The senate at its night session gave approval to a bill which will permit the commissioners of Licking county to reimburse Thomas J. McKim for the use of his road building equipment.

Another bill receiving the senate's endorsement was to give the state utilities commission the right to grant increases or decreases in bus equipment without advertising.

The senate-approved bill to provide a method of distributing intangible taxes collected and impounded in large counties, in 1932-33 was passed by the house and sent to the governor. Under its provisions, most of the impounded taxes would go to relief and educational funds.

LEGISLATURE HIGHLIGHTS

(By Associated Press)

Thumbnail sketch of activities in the legislature.

The house-approved emergency bills were on the senate calendar today. Governor White wanted the measures passed as a means of speeding reorganization or liquidation of closed state banks.

A vote on the beer bill is expected today. The administration urged immediate passage, but leaders of both houses preferred to take more time to study the bill's provisions.

One of many amendments in the beer measure would allow the sale of the beverage on Sundays and election days by retailers. Governor White may oppose this change.

The senate held a night session last night intending to vote on the banking bills but final action was deferred. The house approved the bills last Monday.

The Emmons bill to allow betting at running horse races was before the house today as was the Whittemore bill to permit installment payment of delinquent taxes.

Removal of censorship from the news reels was voted by the house last night. Other house-approved measures would allow library boards 70 per cent of the intangible tax levies, abolish the office of superintendent of investigation in the state utilities commission, reappropriate funds for improvements at state institutions, and authorize distribution of intangible taxes impounded in large counties in 1932-33.

Former Salem Minister Succumbs At Home In Cleveland

own congregation but also by the membership of many churches in this part of the state.

In the summer of 1926 he traveled extensively in the countries of continental Europe and his impressions of the countries and their civilization were also greatly appreciated by those who were privileged to hear him. It has been said that he was ever a considerable period of time, the past of any minister in the Christian church, the brotherhood in which his regular employment always was found except that he was called to the pulpits of the churches of many other denominations on account of his remarkable talent for the ministry. Not only were his sermons at all times most interesting and eagerly listened to by his congregations but as a financial manager in the churches, where he lived, he was second to none. He never permitted any congregation where he was employed to place any permanent indebtedness against the church property.

Liked Teaching

During his entire career in the ministry he retained his love for the teaching profession and upon many occasions was called to the high school as a supply teacher and he always enjoyed tutoring, especially in the languages, any students who needed assistance. His memory was remarkable and he read accurately many chapters from both the Old and New Testament without the use of the Bible.

Since leaving the pastorate of the Salem church in 1926 he has served widely as a supply minister in many of the churches of northern and eastern Ohio, including Cleveland where he resided since leaving Salem.

In about 1926 he organized the M. J. Grable company with

THE DAY IN SPORTS

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service
Sports Editor

ADMITTEDLY, I'm a bit on the ingenuous type since that horse kicked me, but the doctors were very reassuring at the time and spoke pretty confidently of rest and kind treatment by loving hands. They were unable to do much for the horse and I've often wondered whether so trivial an incident could have caused me to misunderstand the wrestling business, which is so simple and unaffected and straightforward to others but remains so bewildering to me.

There is, for example, the extraordinary behavior of Mr. Jack Curley, who is known everywhere as the big promoter. He said to me one day strictly in confidence, that if Mr. Ed. "Strangler" Lewis, the wrestler, ever came into his office, he would not throw him out. He'd have him thrown out.

"Of course," he added, hastily, "if Lewis needed $500, I'd give it to him for old time's sake. Any dealings otherwise with that man are impossible."

That was less than a year ago. Today Mr. Lewis not only has made thousands of dollars for and under Mr. Curley, but they say he even "ranks" the big promoter in the management of the troupe. Mr. Curley is the man heard and seen and talked about but his status, it seems, is relatively obscure.

The man higher up is Mr. Joe "Toots" Mondt, who controls the syndicate on a nationwide basis. Mr. Lewis, they say, is second in command. Mr. Mondt is an ex-wrestler.

A Mr. Jack Pfeffer, also operating in a seemingly minor way out of Mr. Curley's office, is actually a pretty dominant figure, being "in on" the New York and Philadelphia end. Mr. Pfeffer never wrestled and while this may not be important, Mr. Curley never wrestled, either, and he's only "in on" the New York end.

SO PERHAPS Mr. Curley did not so fully deceive me that time, for his dealings with Mr. Lewis have been confined to New York and even then not as one man employing another but on a basis of strict equality. Indeed, if any arrangement was made for an out-of-town showing, I'm informed that Mr. Lewis would be in charge, although nominally so. I mean that, under no circumstances, would Mr. Curley expose himself to all eyes in a pair of half-column pants.

Before we proceed to other matters, there is the case of Mr. Paul Bowser, of Boston, of whom Mr. Curley said many times and oft that an association would never do. They are now honored colleagues and respected friends.

As for Mr. Lewis, it may seem strange that so powerful a world fell to retain the championship title of the group, even for a temporary interval. However, they say Mr. Lewis was running wrestling by night and finally wearied of it all. Anyhow, he lost one night to Mr. Jim Brown, indicating that he must have become downright exhausted.

SO FOR the time, he ceased to be champion in New York, which has a working agreement with California. The latter, however, still recognizes Mr. Lewis as champion because it insists upon decisions on the basis of two out of three falls, meaning that Mr. Lewis can lose all over a great portion of North America and still be the world's greatest wrestler—in California.

Meantime, the folks out there are being edified from time to time by a Mr. J. M. London who once gave up wrestling in New York, where he was champion at the time, to operate in California, where he wasn't. That didn't seem sensible on the part of Mr. London but I hesitate to speak of this and those other matters I've mentioned because, as I've indicated, I find wrestling altogether a most bewildering business and very clearly I'm not a competent witness.

Maybe, in fact, the horse was right in the first place.

SANDERS CAGERS UPSET MULLINS IN CLOSE CLASH

Pottery Quintet Bows To Villagers, 47-30, At Memorial Hall Gym

NEDELKA STARS IN ORPHANS' WIN, 20-19

Absence of Bob Campbell Handicaps Foremen's Club In Series

Championship titles of Salem's basketball leagues today were in possession of the John Sanders Orphans and the Winona I. G. A. quintet.

Mullins, Pottery Victims

Withstanding a thrilling fourth-period rally by their foe, the Orphans gained titular distinction by knocking out a 20-19 verdict over the Mullins Foremen's club last night while the Winona five again outclassed Salem China company tilters, 47-30.

Winona came through with one of the season's finest rallies to upset the Pottery five, playing real championship ball to tally 29 points in two periods.

The Pottery, overwhelmed by the villagers in the opening game of the series Monday, started out strong, gaining a 12-4 lead in the first period, but Winona staged a brilliant comeback and knotted the count at 18-all at halftime.

I. G. A. Five Rallies

The I. G. A. defense tightened while simultaneously the team opened up with a sensational offense that soon left the ceramic five far behind. The score at the close of the third period was 29-21.

Ward, tallying 16 points. Myron Whinnery with 13 and Grady Odom with 10, were leaders in the victory, scoring attack with Jackson and Rill performing best for the losers.

Foremen's club basketballers gave the Orphans a hard fight for two periods, trailing at the close of the opener, 4-3, but tied the count, 9-9, at the half.

The third stanza, however, spelled defeat for the body-makers when the Sandersmen rolled in nine points while the victims were held to a lone fielder.

Nedelka, Earley Star

Tom Nedelka proved his right to distinction as the league's most valuable player, leading the Sanders attack with 10 points, while Norman Earley played his consistently brilliant game at center. Robush, Older and Litty starred for the losers.

Ross Wins Chance For Title Clash

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 23.—Barney Ross, a youngster from Chicago's ghetto, has earned a chance at Champ Cansner's world lightweight championship.

By outpointing Billy Petrolle last night, Ross certified himself as the best of the field seeking to dethrone the champion.

Ross didn't beat old Billy by a mile, but he did a good enough job to convince the titleholder, Cansner, who watched at the ring-side. Apparently he hadn't expected much of Ross, for he said the 22-year-old Chicagoan had surprised him.

Reese To Run In Cleveland Meet

WOOSTER, March 23.—Henry Reese, of Salem, a sophomore at Wooster College, will be one of the Scot runners in the indoor track meet at the Cleveland public auditorium Saturday evening.

Couch Carl B. Munson plans to use Reese in the 50 yard dash. Reese is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Reese, 639 East State st.

Four Reasons For Confidence of Cubs

CHARLEY GRIMM, MANAGER OF THE CHICAGO CUBS

RIGGS STEPHENSON, CUBS' LEFTFIELDER

LOON WARNEKE, PITCHER CHICAGO CUBS

HAZEN (KIKI) CUYLER

BY RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—Charley Grimm is starting his first season as manager of the Chicago Cubs with a smile on his lips and an ache in his back. He has been battling the lumbago for several weeks.

"The only grim part of the business is my being laid up when my feet are itching to get out on the field," he said. "Say, that's not a bad line, is it? 'Grim details worry Grimm.' Well, I've got it licked now. Expect to be back at first base in a few days."

"Nothing To Worry Over"

"There is nothing to worry over so far as the club is concerned. With Babe Herman in right field, we have added batting punch that should mean a lot more runs this year. Our only weakness, as I see it, is a lack of experienced left-handed pitching."

"We have a great young club. I never played with a finer bunch of fellows."

Grimm took over the managerial reins late last season. The team was on a road trip, in second place, 6½ games behind Pittsburgh. When it returned to Chicago it was in first place by half a game and stayed in front.

The Cubs' pilot starts this season with a strong club, largely because of the acquisition of Floyd "Babe" Herman, for years Brooklyn's cloutier mainstay. Herman's presence should relieve Riggs Stephenson, left fielder, of some of the cleanup-hitting burden.

Cuyler At Center

Kiki Cuyler will be in center. Frank Demaree, who made good in his first season last year, will be on hand for emergency fly chasing duties and either Vince Barton or Paul McCarron will round out the outfield.

Grimm is impressed with the work of McCarron, recruit picked up this year from the Albany, N. Y. club.

(Tomorrow—Boston Red Sox).

New Training Schedule Expected To Aid Eastman to New Records

(By International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—Under a new system of training, "Blazing Ben" Eastman, Stanford University's speedy middle-distance star, is ready for action.

Undaunted by his unexpected defeats last year by Bill Carr, the University of Pennsylvania flyer, Eastman is setting out on a campaign which he expects will carry him to victory and to two new world's records.

Ben, now the official caretaker of the world's 440-yard mark at 45.4 seconds is going after Carr's 45.2 for the 400 meters and incidentally try to lower his own quarter-mile time.

Two facts lead Eastman and his coach, R. L. (Dink) Templeton, to think he will be successful in his quests. They are:

Reasons For Success
1. His new training regime.
2. His improved physical condition.

Ben, now a senior, has put in his two former early season preparation periods working on starting and sprinting, running his full distances only during meets.

"I've come to the conclusion that was a mistake," Templeton explains, for although Ben had tremendous speed he faded toward the finish. He could rip off his first 220 like a sprinter, fairly burn up the track, but then he would begin to labor and lose some of his form and stride. His strength was not built up, nor his stamina."

"Backwards" Schedule

To give his star the power to finish fresh, Templeton worked Ben's training program "backward" this year, starting him running for a mile or more, gradually setting him down to the quarter-mile, with a few dashes thrown in just to keep his speed polished up.

"That seems to be the ticket for Ben," Templeton claims. "He's showing no signs of fatigue in the 440, finishing in a blaze."

The runner went "stale" in the midst of the 1932 season, lost a lot of weight and was under a physician's care, coming back to form just in time for the Olympic games, where he hustled Carr into the Pennsylvanian's phenomenal 400-meter mark.

But Ben has regained all his lost strength and intends to keep it.

From Southern Camps

(By Associated Press)
NEW ORLEANS—Wesley Ferrell, the Indians' ace pitcher, is certain to be absent from the Cleveland training camp the first four weeks will handicap him in no way.

When he arrived yesterday to complete the club roster, he expressed the belief he had done as much work at home, as he would have done had he been in camp.

PT. MYERS—Smartering from a close 6 to 7 defeat, Cincinnati's red legs set out today to lick the Philadelphia Athletics even though the game was only an exhibition.

The Reds got eight hits to their opponents' nine yesterday, but they did not come at the right moment.

Suffering from a blistered and infected right foot, Manager Donnie Bush was back in Tampa today and Coach Jewel Ems handled the team.

ST. PETERSBURG—Babe Ruth again will do the honors for the New York Yankees this year, but at a salary not so high as he originally demanded nor so low as Col. Jacob Ruppert's early ultimatum.

The Yankee home run slugger finally has agreed to sign a one-year contract for $52,000, the lowest salary he has received since the $50,000 days of several years ago.

WEST PALM BEACH—Holdout troubles of the St. Louis Browns are over for the 1933 season.

Rick Ferrell, the club's ace catcher, and last Brownie holdout, signed his contract last night.

SAN FRANCISCO—After years of utility roles with Brooklyn and Cincinnati, Harvey Hendrick may find himself starting the season as a Chicago Cub regular.

Manager Charlie Grimm's ailing back still lacks something of being ready for work, and Hendrick may get the call.

LOS ANGELES—The New York Giants needed out the Pittsburgh Pirates in their exhibition tilt yesterday but it cost them three minor injuries. Freddy Fitzsimmons, Manager Bill Terry, and Joe Moore, all were hurt, but not seriously.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

A broadcast from Moscow, Russia, has been announced for the Saturday afternoon schedule of WABC-CBS, making the first regularly listed program to come from that country.

Saturday's program is to last 45 minutes and includes songs by two choruses and two soloists and selections by the State Symphony orchestra.

Frank Black, who directs his orchestra in a Sunday night WJZ-NBC program under the title of "The Land Where Good Songs Go," has decided to intersperse it with an occasional presentation of "Songs of Tomorrow."

Station KDKA of Pittsburgh, Pa., has purchased a baby blimp to be used in connection with experiments it is making to overcome fading. It will be anchored about 1,500 feet above the station to trail down a 500-foot antenna.

DAYS OF ACTION
RELIEF BILLS
ATTACK ON JEWS

—By Arthur Brisbane—
(Copyright, 1933, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

UNDER President Roosevelt come days of "quick action." The beer bill is a beer law now, everything signed and ready, including internal revenue stamps and many new beer licenses. Fourteen million dollars' worth of new buildings, for brewers, are now under way in New York city alone.

You may drink all the beer that is good for you not later than April 7, in all but dry states, and you may get it properly made, for five cents a glass.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S farm relief measure passed the house of representatives by a big margin, and goes to the senate. Meanwhile, President Roosevelt is rushing his bill for relief of the idle. He asks congress and labor groups to discuss it with him. The suggestion that 250,000 men be employed in national forests is objected to by Chairman Connery of the House labor committee, because the suggested pay, $1 a day, is too low a wage scale for unskilled labor.

Such low pay would be inadequate. But if the government would feed the men, as it feeds soldiers, extremely well, for about 30 cents a day, letting the men send all their earnings to their families, it would be better than nothing.

ATTACKS ON JEWS continue in Germany, according to news dispatches and private information. International News supplies a photograph taken in Munich of a Jewish resident, walking with bare head and bare feet through the streets, accompanied by policemen and carrying a sign reading: "I shall never again complain to the police."

He had reported that Hitler troops had beaten him. Following his compulsory walk through the streets, he was ejected from the city.

JEWS complain that prominent Jews have been abducted by Nazi troopers, their bodies found later riddled with bullets. Wilhelm Spiegel, a Jewish lawyer, candidate at the municipal elections, is said to have been shot down in cold blood, while Alfred Apfel, another lawyer, president of the Zionist organization in Berlin, arrested after the burning of the Reichstag building, was tortured to death.

In addition, all Jewish members are dropped from the German civil service and all Jewish employees from hospitals, health institutions and other public departments.

THREE orthodox rabbinical associations of America proclaim next Monday a day of fasting in protest against the persecutions of the Jews in Germany. The solemn fast will call attention to conditions, as will the mass meeting to be held afterward, but cannot be expected to produce much in the way of results across the ocean.

Something more energetic and nearer to Berlin is begged for.

THE "Jones bill," called relief measure mentioned thus far, is urged by Mr. Rainey, speaker of the house. It involves a $30,000,000,000 United States bond issue to scale down mortgage interest rates.

The $30,000,000,000 bill would enable those that hold mortgages on farms to change the mortgages for United States bonds, paying a low interest rate.

Mr. Rainey says: "This would cost the government nothing."

The bonds would be retired as farmers paid off their mortgages, paying to the United States government instead of the former owners of mortgages.

The latter would get instead of sometimes doubtful mortgages the best security in the world at a lower interest with peace of mind.

"Make Yourself Comfy, Girls!"

Because there weren't enough chairs to go around, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, set a new note in informality during her first conference with "Ladies of the Press" at the White House. The "First Lady" is shown kneeling on the floor while some of the lady scribes sit around her. After Mrs. Roosevelt told her story the interviewers were served with tea and cake.

New Film of Press Agency Brings Lee Tracy to State

A LIVELY comedy-drama that exposes the ballyhoo racket and which is alive with the personality of its fast talking star—Lee Tracy, is "The Half-Naked Truth" scheduled to appear at the State theater Friday and Saturday.

Lee Tracy

Tracy and Velez Star
With Tracy is that Mexican bon fire—Lupe Velez. Then there is Eugene Pallette and Frank Morgan.

The late Harry Reichenbach was generally known as the most spectacular press agent Broadway ever knew. Many episodes in the agent's life are recorded in this fast moving drama. Tracy is seen in this role—and who could do it better?

In a contest recently Tracy was awarded the prize for the fastest talking man in Hollywood. But with his always moving expressive hands and likable smile and ways Tracy is also a most capable actor. Remember him in "Blessed Event."

THAT treasured romance of the American theater, "Madame Butterfly," modernized and done into a talking picture with Sylvia Sydney and Gary Grant in leading roles and Charley Ruggles in the comedy role, concludes its run today at the State theater.

The story by John Luther Long and the play by David Belasco have been brought up to date in the process of filming.

Sylvia Sydney Scores
Miss Sydney, her dark eyes and eyebrows slanted, her hair lacquered, her figure draped in colorful Oriental fashions, plays very well the role of Cho-Cho-San, the demure Japanese maiden. Wooded by the handsome American officer, stationed in the city of her native land, she marries him according to the Japanese law, after the officer learned the law provides automatic divorce when husband leaves wife

The officer finds he is greatly in love with his little Oriental wife and when he has to leave the land does so with regret. Cho-Cho-San tells him she will wait, and so she does, faithfully, finding some consolation with their little dark-eyed boy.

Is Gone Long Time
Three times do the "robins nest again" and still the man little Cho-Cho-San loves does not return.

Then one day the American fleet docks again in the Japanese dock. The Japanese girl runs to meet her husband but her joys are soon replaced with tears. With him is lovely white girl whose picture she has seen. She knew all the time, she tells Pinkerton (Grant) as she sends him away.

The climax is touching, dramatic. Miss Sydney is fine, better than in any of her American roles and it seems more lovely. She is a remarkable actress for one so young.

Grant, too, is satisfactory and Ruggles, as always is at his comical best.

EXPLAINS VOTE ON MOSIER BILL

ballot, and the 52 receiving the highest number of votes—be they "wet," "dry" or "unpledged"—will be the duly elected representatives to the convention.

"An amendment was offered on the floor of the house eliminating the 52 delegates to be elected from the state at large, and providing that representation in the convention be on the same basis as we now have representation in the house of representatives and in the senate. I supported this amendment, sincerely wishing to give the people of my own district representation in this convention, which representation appears to be impossible if delegates are elected 'at-large.' I am sorry the amendment was lost.

"A second amendment was offered to strike from the ballot the list of unpledged candidates. Believing that this election should be a straight 'wet' or 'dry' vote, and that this convention should not be made a play-ground in which unpledged delegates could barter and trade, I supported the amendment. This amendment also was lost.

"When these amendments, the one giving some representation to the voters in my county, and the other making it impossible for any unpledged candidate to be a delegate to the convention, were lost—I voted against the bill itself, for in my opinion it is fair neither to the 'wets' nor to the 'drys'."
